TO PREVENT OTHER DISASTERS

M'ADOO AFTER INFORMATION FEDERAL OFFICERS ACT.

Police to Report on Pier Conditions -Station Firemen on Boats, the Commissioner Suggests-Thanks and Praise for Workers in His Statement.

Police Commissioner McAdoo issued orders vesterday to nearly all the police stations in the city to make inspections of the piers where pleasure boats put in and the methods used in handling the crowds The inspection of the boats themselves does not come under the jurisdiction of the Police Department.

The Commissioner said that if it were advisable to station two firemen at each theatre during a performance, he though that firemen should be detailed as well to the pleasure craft when they carried excursions. Order for the detail of such men would have to be issued by the Fire Com-

The formal order for the inspection of piers and methods of handling the crowds is addressed to all water front precincts and is as follows:

You will have all piers from which pleasure boats start carefully examined, and will report to this office in writing, before 10 A. M., dune 18, as to the following:
First—General conditions attending the landing and embarking of passengers at the piers where pleasure boats make landings.
Second—What safeguards, if any, are used in the handling of the crowds which patronize these boats. What system, if any, is practised.

Third—Are the boats, in your judgment, at any time overloaded?

Fourth—State general conditions and give such views as you may see fit looking to the safety of the passengers and the duty of the companies or others who handle them.

After issuing the order the Commissioner gave out this statement:

After issuing the order the Commissioner gave out this statement:

I issued an order this morning regarding an inspection of the mode of handling passengers at the various piers and landing places of the pleasure resorts, and have directed that report be made by Saturday to me. The appliances for safety, the condition of the boilers and the hulls, and the discipline of the crews and the precautions against fire on board do not come under the jurisdiction of this department, but the Police Department will not hesitate to use all its power in connection with the embarking and landing of the passengers, looking to the safety of the same.

The saddest and most pitiful thought in regard to this disaster is that it fell upon the very best citizenship in the community, the industrious, frugal, peaceful, well behaved people of German origin. There are no better people in New York, and it was pathetic vesterday to look at the new shoes, the neat, tidy and attractive dresses, the articles of jewelry, the savings bank books. The maternal and paternal affection, so strong in this people, was shown in the many bodies found together with locked arms.

Of course the police, as usual on an occasion of this kind, did splendidly. The meneded no direction; they worked spontameously, enthusiastically and zealously of their own accord, and instances of heroism and devotion to duty were so common as not to be individually noticeable. I am very proud of the way the police force acquitted itself vesterday. It was characterized at once by earnestness, courage, zeal and a high order of intelligence.

earnestness, courage, zeal and a high order of intelligence.

I also want to compliment the Naval Reserves for their prompt offer of help. They sent two splendid steam launches, well manned, which we organized into ferries from 132d and 138th street, to the island. They ran all last night and are still running to-day on schedule time.

We are also indebted to the Metropolitan Street Railway Company for responding to the request for cluster lights and the services of their experts so as to light the hospital grounds on the island, where the work had to be kept up all night.

Pach Bros. photographers, were also very prompt in sending men to take photographs of the dead. I gave orders that these pictures should not under any circumstances be used for any purpose except that of enabling relatives to identify their dead and after that has been accomplished I shall ask that the negatives be destroyed.

Above all, the police are unanimous in praising the action of the water men in and around the island. These men volunteered, worked unceasingly from the time of the accident, all through last night, and are working there to-day. I have ordered Inspector Albertson to get their names and the time they work, and I know the Mayor will join me in seeing that they are comensated.

Everything that has been done by the Police Department had the ecouragement of the Mayor and his hearty support. The bodies are being very rapidly recovered of the Mayor and his hearty support. The bodies are being very rapidly recovered and claimed. Twelve bodies found this morning. The divers have not yet succeeded in fully exploring the wreck. I have suggested that if it is considered necessary they might use dynamite cartridges in the woodwork so as to get at the hold. Those in charge at the island expect that bodies will turn up for the next two or three days. They are coming in there at the rate of one every five minutes.

POR A MORE RIGID PEDERAL INSPECTION. Collector Stranahan wrote to George Uhler, Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels, vesterday asking for a conference to-day to discuss the possibility of a more rigid inspection of excursion boats. Collector Stranahan explained that his letter to Mr. Uhler was due to the fact that, although this it are chilicatory, it has been though this it not obligatory, it has beer usual for the Custom House to supply in spectors on holidays, Saturdays and Sundays during the summer months to assist in the inspection of excursion boats. The Collector desires, on account of this divided responsibility, to do everything possible, with the cooperation of the regular inspectors, to make the inspection rigid.

LEWIS NIXON'S SAFETY PLANS. Speaking of the disaster, L. the shipbuilder, said yesterday:

the shipbuilder, said yesterday:

Nothing will prevent a panic under circumstances such as occurred on the Slocum, but the effects might be greatly minimized.

Radical reconstruction, while desirable in many instances, will not be insisted upon. So also requirements as to future building of boats must be so framed that new boats will not be out of the question and the old fleet in this way perpetuated.

The first thing striking every one is the rapid spread of flames through the great uninterrupted deck, saloons, and spaces. In the most ordinary factories we have metal buikheads or partitions to restrict flames, and in the case of such vessels I think it not only feasible but essential that such buikheads of light double plating, filled in with asbestos boards, should be fitted so that they could be swung or dropped across with asbestos boards, should be fitted so that they could be swung or dropped across certain parts of the structure in case of fire. They could be so arranged that they need not obstruct passave except when necessary. All the machinery space should be cased in by metal to the top deck. Of course this is done in all new vessels except those of the filmsiest construction.

Fireproof wood will eventually be used, or some form of artificial board that is non-inflammable.

Lincrusta walton and inflammable stuff of such nature should be barred. Staff and pressed steel should take its place for ornamentation.

Two Families Claim Boy's Body.

The body of a boy which was identified early last night as Charles Vetter, 11 years old, of 730 Sixth street, was later claimed by the Klenck family of 113 St. Mark's place as their eight-year-old son Charles. The body, which had been removed to the Vet ter home, was brought back to the pier.

DROPPED $600,000 ON RACES. St. Louis Plunger Admits That He Gambled Away His Entire Fortune. St. Louis, June 16.—The trial of a gambling case in Judge Hiram N. Moore's court resulted in bringing to light a man who lost $600,000 on racehorses in a few years. The man is Louis Sonnenschein.

The police wished to make it appear hat the immense loss was due to gambling in the Russian form of faro, but the loser under oath, while admitting his loss, declared that only horse racing was responsible and that not one cent had been wagered on the game which the police are now seeking to break up.

The defendant was Ignatz Inglis, charged with having operated the Russian game in the saloon of Herman Wohl. Sonnenschein declared that only pinochle was played in Wohl's place. He was asked by Prosecutor Williams if he had lost the $600,oon in the game.

"No. I lost it on the races." said Sonnenchein "Where did you get the $600,000?" was asked. "Inherited it." was the reply. "From where?"

"Estates in Austria. My father to-day can sign his check for $1,000,000," said Sonnenschein.

It developed that Sonnenschein became infatuated with the races and dropped the entire amount of his fortune in less than six years. Judge Moore believed Sonnenschein. Ingle was held for the Grand

PARK AVENUE TUNNEL UPHELD

BUT INJURED PROPERTY OWN-ERS WILL GET REDRESS.

Commission Reports That the Public's Needs Are Controlling-Plans Were Modified So That the Subway Walls Came Nearer and Injured Houses. The Appellate Division received yesterday the report of Charles Bulkley Hubbell, J. Henry Haggerty and Emanuel Blumenstiel, the commissioners in regard to the Park avenue subway. The effect of the report is to legalize the construction of the tunnel from Thirty-fourth to Fortysecond streets under that avenue.

After property owners along the section discovered in March, 1902, that the plans of the tunnel had been changed and that their houses were being injured because of the nearness of the ditch, they set out to get redress, but could find no responsible party o sue.

They did get a decision from the courts that the construction was unlawful. The Rapid Transit Commission couldn't get enough consents from property owners, and finally applied to the Appellate Division, which by a pleasing fiction named a commission to determine and report "whether a railroad or railroads for the convenience and transportation of persons and property ought to be constructed and operated. The commissioners were expected to decide whether the tunnel under Park avenue already constructed should be allowed to

The report of the commission, which now only wants confirmation by the court, says in part:

"We feel it is proper to state that we are still of the opinion that the exigent, paramount and controlling necessities and rights of the public require that the easterly tunnel, as now existing, should be utilized, as it can be by the action of your honorable court, to afford the relief to a long suffering public which can be fully and promptly furnished thereby.

In view of all these facts, and after due deliberation, and after a careful consideration of the arguments of counsel, we most respectfully determine and report to this honorable court that the railroad or railorads mentioned in the petition of the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners in this proceeding ought to be constructed and operated, and without in any way attaching any conditions to this our determination and report, we most respectfully recommend, in view of the great damage suffered by the contestants in this proceeding by reason of the excavation incident to said easterly tunnel, or in any way connected therewith that such conditions may be imposed, should the report of your commissioners be cont the report of your commissioners be con-firmed, as may seem to your honorable court ust and proper.

GRADE CROSSINGS GOING. Veto of State Appropriation Delays New York Central, Mr. Place Says. Ira A. Place, one of the lawyers of the New York Central Railroad, said yesterday that the company was eager to abolish all grade crossings within the city limits as fast as possible. Under the law, the company bears half the cost, the city and the State one quarter each. The company and the city were ready to pay their share, he said, but the appropriation made by the Legislature for its quota had been invariably vetoed by the Governor for several years.

"We had almost arranged with the Park Commissioner for the abolition of the Van Cortlandt Park crossing," said Mr. Place, "but after election the matter hung fire and we were unable to bring it to an issue. As it is, most of the grade crossings within As it is, most of the grade crossings within the city limits, will soon disappear. The track of the Spuyten Duyvil branch has been changed so as to avoid the grade crossings at East 230th street Broadway, Kingsbridge road, Corlears street, Tibbett avenue, West 230th street and West 27th attent. The entire course of the road has avenue, West 230th street and West 227th street. The entire course of the road has been changed to abolish these crossings. The clerk looked blank.
"Four and a Half. Just plain Four—Here, give me that pencil of yours," and the man going South grabbed the clerk's pencil and wrote "1403 4½ street." He was gone before the clerk got through studying the scribble.
"Yes, that's right," said a man from Washington, who was standing near. "I reckon that's about the only street named that way in the world. It's in Washington, all right, and it's about half a mile long."

"That stumps me," said the clerk. "If it were a street out in some wildcat Western town I wouldn't feel so bad about it, but to think it's only 500 miles away and in Washington, too, and I didn't know it."

They were a healthy looking young couple and they and their gurgling baby which the father was carrying, caught every eye in a crowded Broadway car the moment they boarded it the other day near Forty-second street. The mother took the baby while the father dug down in his trousers for the fares. Then she passed the youngster back to his dad, who sat up straight and looked thoroughly pleased with himself at the attention his fat, rosy cheeked offspring was attracting.

"George, give me that handkerchief I sent you back after," said the wife when the car had gone a few blocks.

"Yes, dearie," answered the husband, and he put his hand into an inside coat pocket, whence he drew something that fluttered out of its laundry creases as it came into the view of all the passengers. There was a scream from the wife as she made a dive for what George had believed was a handkerchief. He saw what he held and looked longingly down at the cracks in the floor, while baby said "Goo" and made a grab for the piece of lingerie the wife was trying to hide.

George and the mother and baby got out at the next corner.

"Poor devil," said a sympathetic passenger. "My wife wears corset covers like that and I packed one to the theatre in mistake for a handkerchief one night. But I didn't take it out when anybody was around."

Desire for Stenographers. PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The objection of the police to Meyer A. Rothschild's method of securing a stenographer has resulted in his arrest. An alluring advertisement that Rothschild inserted in a newspaper last Sunday brought about his clash with the law.

Rothschild claims to be a representative of a Western distillery. He is middle aged and has small eyes and a big diamond. According to the advertisement, the whiskey

According to the advertisement, the whiskey man wished to employ a young girl who would be companionable and pleasing. One of the young women who sought the position offered was Estella Walters, 18 years old.

She called upon Rothschild Wednesday evening. She was informed that she answere! all the requirements of the advertisement and Rothschild asked her to go with him to a house on Fifteenth street. There he was arrestd. The girl showed a letter Rothschild had sent her. It said in part:

It said in part:

"Am not sure if you can meet requirements as to companion. Would like a young lady that would allow me to love. I don't require the same of you, however.

KILLED BY SIGHTSEEING AUTO. Watchmaker Crushed to Death at Broad way and 25th Street. With a hundred people looking on, a man's head was crushed flat last evening at Broadway and Twenty-fifth street by a sightseeing automobile weighing two tons and a half. One of the wheels went over the man's face. The man had with him a well worn leather handbag containing watchmaker's tools. He tried to cross Broadway from the east to the west, half a dozen feet behind Policeman Tom Reardon of the Broadway Squad, who was piloting a woman and child over the crossing. As Reardon and his two charges cleared the northbound car tracks a car shot forward. The man behind was about to step in front of the car when the motorman yelled at him: "Go back! Get out of the way." The man jumped back quickly and fell in front of the southbound auto, on the upper deck of which were half a dozen women. Both its front wheels went over him and then the auto stopped. The driver sat with a white face, too scared to move The sightseers on top of the car climbed down hastily. Commissioner McAdoo appeared at the inner circle of the crowd. He made no comment. He had seen many dead within twenty-four hours. W. H. Lawson, the driver, was arrested. WILL MAKE RADIUM CHEAP. That Is, if $500,000 a Pound Is Cheap—A Philadelphia Chemist's Discovery.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16 .- Dr. George Lee, a chemist of this city, claims that he has discovered an electro-chemical process of manufacturing radium for less than $500,000 a pound. At present it is valued at $16,000,000 a pound. Six months ago, Dr. Lee says, he learned from Professor and Mrs. Curie, the discoverers of radium in Paris, that they had found that barium and thorium rock particles clung to radium. He immediately set to work in his laboratory in a downtown office building here to analyze these rocks and secure or abstract from them their luminous properties

In an old packing box which he rigged up in his library the chemist placed the combination of barium and thorium and found after a time that they produced a fluorescent substance that would penetrate metal. He declares that he is now able to produce radium. Dr. Lee says that he will establish a laboratory near a barium mine in Maryland, in which he will manufacture radium.

WILL YIELD TO RAISULI. Moroccan Government Ready to Grant His Increased Demands.

WASHINGTON, June 16 .- The increased demands of the bandit Raisuli, that he be appointed ruler of four provinces in Morocco as a price of the liberty of Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley, his stepson. will probably be granted by the Sultan of Morocco. The State Department received the following from United States Consul-General Gummeré this morning:

"As reported yesterday, Raisuli has increased his demands. I am informed to-day by the Minister of Foreign Affairs that one the sheiks, with two of his brothers, whose apprehension was demanded by Raisuli, has been arrested; also that a courier was sent to Raisuli this morning to state that his further demands will probably be granted by the Moroccan Government if the captives are released.

DECORATES PRESIDENT KROEGER Baron Speck Von Sternburg Also Fires Three

Shots at the Schuetzenfest. Baron Speck von Sternburg, the Imperial German Ambassador, was the guest of honor yesterday at the National Schuetzen Bunds hoosing festival at Schuetzen Park, Union Hill. He was received at the castle by President Henry Kroeger and officers of the Bund. He made a speech in German and decorated Mr. Kroeger with Emperor William II.'s token of the German national organization. The decoration was a solid organization. The decoration was a solid gold German eagle on a black band.

The Baron visited the ranges and fired three shots. He was presented with a handsome silver cup. He also inspected the bowling alleys and watched the bowlers for a while. He held a reception at the park last night. This message was received from Mayor McClellan, who had planned to visit the big festival yesterday:

"I am compelled to go to Riker's Island to see what aid can be rendered to the victims of the recent terrible disaster. This will, of course, prevent me from following out our plan for this afternoon. I regret this fact extremely, but feel that you will agree with me in saying that, however regrettable the fact may be, it can have no weight when opposed to the greater obligation which I am subjected to by yesterday's disaster."
